Business Activities

i-CABLE Communications Limited is an integrated communications services provider in Hong Kong, commanding one of the largest and most influential television viewer and communications service user bases in town.

It owns and operates a near universal wireline telecommunications network in Hong Kong, over which it provides television, broadband, telecommunications and multimedia services to over one million households.

As the first pay television operator in Hong Kong, it is one of the largest producers of television, film and multimedia content based in Hong Kong for distribution over conventional and new media, with a particular focus on news, sports and infotainment.
