

Biography of Keynote Speaker

Ir Wong Chun-kau, Jolly

Venue:	4/F Exhibition Hall, Hong Kong Productivity Council 78 Tat Chee Road, Kowloon Tong
Date:	February 18, 2009 (Wednesday)
Time:	18:00 - 19:30

Jolly is the Chief Police Telecommunications Engineer with the Hong Kong Police Force. He received a MSc degree in Telecommunications and Information Systems from the University of Essex, UK and a MPhil degree about digital encryption from the Chinese University of Hong Kong.

Jolly is the Head of Communications Branch, in charge of the corporate planning, technology research and appraisal, technical design and specifications, operations and development of communications facilities and equipment. He is the Chief System Architect of CC3 and has served as the Head of the 3rd Generations Command, Control and Communications (CC3) Division responsible for the design, development and project execution of the digital communications platform to the Hong Kong Police and that is emerging to become an interoperable unified digital common platform for the numerous agencies and departments of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region.

Jolly is a Fellow of the Institution of Engineering and Technology (FIET), also Fellow Members of the Hong Kong Institution of Engineers (FHKIE) and the British Computer Society (FBCS), Member of the Institution of Engineers, Australia (MIEAust) and a Chartered Professional Engineer (CPEng) and Registered Professional Engineer (R.P.E.) in information; electronic; control, automation & instrumentation disciplines.