Business Activities

i-CABLE Communications Limited is an integrated telecommunication services provider in Hong Kong, commanding one of the largest and most influential TV audience and communications service user bases in town.

It owns and operates one of the near-universal wireline telecommunications networks in Hong Kong, over which it provides television, broadband, telecommunications and multi-media services to well over two million households.

As the first pay television operator in Hong Kong, it is also one of the largest producers of television, film and multi-media content for distribution over conventional and new media, with a particular focus on news, sports and infotainment.
